

EIA Significance Training Course

with Josh Fothergill FIEMA, CEnv

Outcomes:

This practical, half-day interactive training workshop will provide core EIA training that focuses on enhancing your understanding of significance, and how to provide efficient evidence of your findings so that you can improve quality, manage risk and stick to budget.

The workshop will bring practitioners and planners together to share insights leading delegates to develop a deeper understanding of how the approach taken to defining and evaluation significance shapes the quality and costs of the EIA delivered.

Delegates will leave with:

- ✓ The ability to recognise the challenges around EIA significance and the impact this has on assessment quality and value
- ✓ Enhanced understanding of the real-world barriers that hold back improved performance and practical insight into how to overcome them
- ✓ Practical advice and tips around improving their approach to EIA significance that can be immediately applied onto existing projects

Feedback from our London Training Course:

- 'Detailed, measured approach and delivery - relevant and engaging'
- Dan Coles, HEO EIA and Land Rights Advisor, Planning Inspectorate
- 'This is trusting information from a competent expert'
- Jayne Oswald, Environmental Planner, Barton Willmore
- 'Interactive, space for debate and sharing experiences' -
Alberto Cassanoia, Senior Engineers, GB Card and Partners
- 'Highlighted challenges and provided ideas to improve EIA'
- Jill Hobbs, Environmental Consultant, Intertek

Date:

May 16, in Manchester

Who should attend?

- Early to mid-career EIA / environmental topic consultants, to provide practical training that builds upon your experience to date.
- Senior professionals seeking a refresher on EIA significance to help refresh their consultancies approach.
- Developers, planners and statutory consultees who are seeking insight into this crucial area of EIA practice.

The training course assumes all delegates have a working understanding of the EIA process, and so many not be suitable for absolute novices.
